About One Roof Campaign

“One Roof” is a campaign that aims to raise awareness about domestic workers’ rights. This campaign is a partnership between the Human Line Organization and the Social Work Society in collaboration with the Ministry of Interior and other international organizations.

“One Roof” Campaign works toward building a positive relationship between the employer and domestic worker that is governed by justice and serves to protect the rights and dignity of both parties. The campaign aims to raise awareness about domestic workers’ rights as stated in Kuwaiti laws to reduce conflict and problems that may arise due to the lack of awareness of laws that regulate the work of domestic workers in Kuwait. “One Roof” also seeks to emphasize that domestic work is an occupation that should be regulated by laws and procedures.

About the Legal Guide

While the relationship between the employer and domestic worker in Kuwait is successful and effective in most cases, it is still important for domestic workers to be knowledgeable of their legal rights and responsibilities in order to be familiar with the rules that regulate their work and be able to demand their rights in case they were violated.

This legal guide provides credible and simplified information on:

- Laws that pertain specifically to domestic work and the regulations and bylaws that regulate them
- Laws pertaining to residency
- Penal and procedural law
- Information on respective places where a person may raise a complaint, report an incident or ask for help
- Definitions of important terms

Absconding Complaint

- An absconding complaint is a notice filed at the Ministry of Interior by the sponsor within a week of the domestic worker absconding from his/her employer's work as per the Aliens' Residence Law. Once an absconding complaint is raised, a sponsor cannot denounce his/her complaint or stop its procedures. An absconding complaint results in the automatic deportation in the case the worker is arrested
- In the case that a domestic worker files a complaint against his/her sponsor at the Department of Domestic Employment, the sponsor cannot file an absconding complaint and has to head to the Department of Domestic Employment to investigate the complaint

Police officers are entitled to detain a suspect for 48 hours before the investigation

The investigator may order to remand the defendant in custody for a period not exceeding 10 days in the case of a misdemeanor and 21 days in the case of a felony from the date of their arrest after hearing their statement

The suspect is entitled to file a complaint against their detention to the Renewal Court on the condition that the extension of the detention period is stated by the court within 48 hours

The Court may extend the remand period through the Renewal Judge for 30 days at the rate of ten days each time after hearing the accused

The specialized court may extend the remand period through the Renewal Judge for a maximum of 90 days at the rate of 30 days each time after hearing the accused

 Law enforcement authorities are entitled to detain a person who is awaiting deportation for a period not exceeding 30 days

Complaints Submitted to Police Stations

When filing a complaint regarding a felony or misdemeanour, it must be submitted to a police officer in the District Police Precinct in the area where the incident took place, who must in turn record it. The police officer has no right to refrain from registering the complaint as per Article 40 of the Criminal Procedures Law. If the District Precinct Officer refuses to register a complaint the below procedures should be followed:

Report the incident to the Department of Control and Inspection, which is part of the Ministry of the Interior

Providing a written complaint with a detailed explanation to the Head of the Police Station

If the Head of the Police Station refuses to register the complaint, a written complaint may be submitted to the Area Commander

If the Area Commander does not register the complaint, a written complaint may be submitted to the Director of Security in the province

Complaints to the Department of Investigation

If the incident is a misdemeanour, then the competent authority that should investigate are the investigators at the Ministry of Interior. The investigator does not have the right to refrain from investigating the complaint, as per Article 40 of the Criminal Procedures Law. If the investigating authority refuses to look into the complaint, the following procedure can be undertaken

A written complaint should be submitted to the relevant head of the investigation

If the head of the investigation refuses to complete the required procedures, a written complaint should be submitted to the governorate's Director of Investigation

If the local head of investigations refuses to complete the required procedures, a written complaint should be submitted to the Director General of the General Department of Investigations

Prosecution Complaints

A written complaint can be filed if the incident is directly related to a felony to the General Attorney's Office. An explanation of the complaint must be included, the date and place of the incident and all of the necessary details. Accordingly, the General Attorney shall transfer the complaint to the concerned prosecution
